

Jeff Francoeur Home Run Derby

Wednesday, Nov. 9, 10 a.m.
Truist Park

THE AT-BAT

Former Atlanta Braves outfielder Jeff Francoeur will host the fourth Home Run Derby on Wednesday, Nov. 9, at 10 a.m. at Truist Park to benefit the Aflac Cancer and Blood Disorders Center of Children's Healthcare of Atlanta. Don't miss this great opportunity to entertain your clients, customers or employees and knock one out of the park for pediatric cancer and blood disorders research. This is your chance to truly feel like a Braves player for a day. In addition, Francoeur will host a private pregame party for you and your guests on Sept. 21 before the Braves play the Washington Nationals at Truist Park.

The Home Run Derby portion of the event will be limited to 50 batters. In addition to their batters, each corporate sponsor will have extra spots for guests to serve as fly-ball shaggers in the outfield. The number of batters and shaggers is determined by the sponsorship level. A second home run fence will be set up in the outfield for the derby. Batters will have the opportunity to take batting practice in the cage under the stadium before the derby.

The competition will be broken down into two rounds. During the first round, each batter will be allocated 10 outs—an out will be anything other than a home run. The top five batters will then advance to a championship round, where they will be given five outs each. This second round will determine who will take home the title of Home Run Derby Champion.

THE PITCH

Proceeds from the Jeff Francoeur Home Run Derby will benefit the Aflac Cancer and Blood Disorders Center, a national leader among childhood cancer, hematology, and blood and marrow transplant (BMT) programs, serving infants to young adults. Recognized as one of the top childhood cancer centers in the country by U.S. News & World Report, the center treats more than 500 new cancer patients each year and follows nearly 2,000 patients with sickle cell disease, hemophilia and other blood disorders.
